

Hemp Dogbane

Apocynum cannabinum

Strong erect purplish stems, similar in structure to Common Milkweed. Its aggressive spreading growth habit should be taken into account as to not crowd out other garden perennials. Some tribes rolled dogbane stem fibers to make fine, strong thread, used for sewing and for making twine, nets, fabric and bowstrings.

Bloom Season: Mid Spring - Early Summer

Flower Colors: White

Soil Tolerance: Average, Sandy, Dry, Moist, Well drained

Height: 3-4 feet

Spread: 2-3 feet

PERENNIAL

